

Spencer Grice, AIA

principal + architecture

One of SMBW's lead design eyes, Spencer approaches concept design with a strong and respected voice, helping staff improve ideas and shaping the way people interact in an architectural landscape. He sees architecture as a representation of human progress and looks to create juxtapositions between old and new. His understanding of real estate as an underpinning to a client's business translates into design and brings an added level of value to any project – large or small.
